Jokowi Proves Tax Reporting Made Easy with e-filing

President Joko Widodo today has filed his annual income tax returns (SPT) online using the Directorate General of Taxation (DGT) electronic filing (e-filing) system on the website <https://djponline.pajak.go.id/>.

President Joko Widodo, popularly known as Jokowi, filed his tax returns through a computer at the tax services counter in Sultan Mahmud Badaruddin II Airport, Palembang before heading back to Jakarta.

By using the tax e-filing system, Jokowi provides an example to all taxpayers that tax reporting is not as complicated as imagined and encourages all taxpayers to exercise their rights and obligations honestly in accordance with the laws.

In addition to President Jokowi, public officials including all civil servants, members of the National Police and members of the Indonesian National Armed Forces, are also required to submit their annual income tax returns online through the e-filing website.

Taxes are the main source of Indonesia revenue and the DGT urges all Indonesian to take part in financing the state budget by doing their taxes honestly and accurately.

All taxpayers are advised to take advantage of the facilities provided by the DGT, including online tax payments through the e-billing system, and online reporting of income tax returns through the e-filing system. Both systems can be accessed at <https://djponline.pajak.go.id/>.

Call Kring Pajak at 1500200 or visit the nearest tax service office (KPP or KP2KP) if you have any difficulties with the systems or for general information on taxation. Our services are provided free of charge because #PajakMilikBersama.
